microneedling & chemical peels

Microneedling involves pricking the skin with tiny needles, causing the body to produce more collagen and elastin. The results are smoother, younger skin. It's very effective in penetrating deeper, older layers of the skin and can be used to treat various scars, wrinkles, and large pores.

Chemical peels are non-surgical cosmetic procedures used to rejuvenate and restore the skin in its uppermost layers. When combined with microneedling, you get the benefit of not only addressing the superficial layers of the skin but also deep down into the skin's dermis.
